

Australian Shepherd Body Proportions

AKC/FCI Breed Standard: "Measuring from the breastbone to the rear of the thigh, and from the top of the withers to the ground the Australian Shepherd is slightly longer than tall."

ASCA Breed Standard: "Slightly longer than tall..."

The Kennel Club Breed Standard: "...length slightly greater than height."

Although not specifically stated in the breed standards, for the movement style called for in these breed standards, it can logically be assumed that the measurement from withers to elbow and elbow to ground should be equidistant.
